It is believed that developing countries with larger young population could see tremendous growth, provided they invest in young people's education, health and protect and guarantee their rights. Youth have the power to change the nation. Young mind is fresher and more innovative which helps in the progress of the country. Young people, who represent a majority of the population in India, are today visibly contributing as political-activists, innovators, entrepreneurs and peace-builders. At the same time, youth face disproportionate social, economic and political barriers which prevents them from unleashing their full potential. To utilize young people's potential as the agents of change, requires involving and empowering them in development, policies and supporting their participation at all levels. Keeping this in mind, this year we have decided to organize "FLAIR 2020" on the issues related with youth in India. We aim to provide platform to youngsters to express their views on challenges, needs and opportunities of young India, to discuss the ideas of the different players working for youth and to unear their ideas, skills, creativity and innovation to tackle the issues for shining future of young India.

Workshop on Human Atlas -MANAV

Funded by Department of Biotechnology, Government of India
Co-funded by Persistent Systems

Recent times have witnessed an explosion in the amount of biological data generated. There are millions of research articles with pivotal information on human health and disease, spanning from single molecule resolution to the level of the whole organism.

However, this information is scattered in different databases, repositories and in the text of journal articles. This makes the seamless extraction of scientific information an extremely challenging and time-consuming (yet incomplete) process. With 100+ databases and millions of data points (combined) from just human cells/tissue and disease, there is a pressing need to collate this information in such a way that users like academic/industrial/clinical researcher as well as teachers and students can easily access information that is relevant to them from a common and modular platform. Although there are ambitious ongoing efforts like the Recon X, The Virtual Physiological Human, Human Cell Atlas, none of these projects aim to build the map of the whole human body simultaneously comparing both macro (organ/tissue/cell) and micro (molecular interaction networks) level details. Manav-Human Atlas Initiative aims to construct a comprehensive map of the entire human body which will explicitly document macro to micro level information. The project Manav will dramatically accelerate our understanding of the working of the human body and help design better therapeutic targets for treating diseases like cancer, diabetes and more.

This project will require understanding, extracting and collating information from millions of scientific papers which would need a massive investment of time, effort and manpower. The large pool of scientifically literate population in India pursuing a bachelors/masters/Ph.D. is a great resource that will be trained and engaged as part of this project to use the annotation tool being developed to collate, curate, manage and visualize this scientific information. This project is funded by Department of Biotechnology (DBT), Government of India as a collaboration between Persistent Systems, NCCS and IISER, Pune.
